

PRESS RELEASE

Sequotech continues to grow and announces three major developments

Delémont, January 29, 2025 - Sequotech, a major IT player headquartered in Delémont (JU), announces three strategic developments designed to strengthen its position in the DACH market: a new acquisition, a common corporate identity for member companies and a strengthening of the management team of a subsidiary.

Another strategic acquisition

Sequotech expands its expertise in Data Warehouse/Lakehouse, Business Intelligence and Analytics with the acquisition of sumIT, a Swiss company based in Baden-Dättwil (AG) and recognized in this field since 2000. This acquisition, which brings the number of companies in the group to six, strengthens Sequotech's offering in the field of data analysis and management. sumIT is an award-winning specialist partner of Oracle and the first Snowflake partner in Switzerland.

"Integration into the Sequotech Group is an important step for sumIT," says Holger Friedrich, founder and CEO of sumIT. "By joining Sequotech, we are associating ourselves with a group whose values we share. This not only ensures the long-term future of our company, but also enables us to benefit from the synergies, innovative strength and growth potential offered by a group like Sequotech."

A unified visual identity

As part of the standardization of their brand image, the companies in the Sequotech Group have developed a visual identity harmonized by identical colors and typography. This evolution reflects the group's common vision, while preserving the individuality and freedom of each company. This visual transformation is an important step in the construction of a harmonized corporate culture, which strengthens collaboration and marks the will to grow together.

Renewal and expansion of exxo it-services management team exxo it-services (Exxo), a member of the Sequotech Group since 2023, announces a change in its management team. Stefan Dettwiler, founder and current CEO, has expressed his wish to devote himself to new challenges. As part of this change, the company welcomes André Koitzsch as its new CEO, and at the same time expands its management with Philipp Bürgin as COO. André Koitzsch brings with him an extensive network in the IT sector, most recently heading Infinigate (Suisse) SA. Philipp Bürgin has over 30 years' experience in the IT sector. This new management team will bring its expertise to bear in continuing Exxo's development.

"These three announcements perfectly illustrate Sequotech's current dynamism," says David Hueber, CEO of Sequotech. "The acquisition of sumIT strengthens our expertise in strategic fields, the new visual identity of our companies reflects our desire to build a strong, united group, and the evolution of Exxo's management demonstrates our ability to ensure the long-term future of our companies through effective succession solutions. These evolutions converge towards a single objective: to consolidate our position as a major player in the IT sector, while preserving the entrepreneurial DNA of each of our companies".
